

Semi-postal

Bone origins were often attributed to mythological 'Wild Men' or 'Giants' of European folklore.

Georges Cuvier found them to be a salamander.

Fossil remains found in 1725 were also a serious concern for the church clergy and were often described as 'Diluvian Man', a victim of the 'Great Flood'.

Illustrated prepaid postage meter, foreign airmail postcard rate to North America

Charles Darwin's "On the Origin of Species" suggests evolution.

